

Haines Phillips Architects supporting the Lauderdale House crowdfunding campaign

The Lauderdale House society is currently running a crowdfunding campaign to help reach their £2.1m fundraising target for the Lauderdale Transformed project.

Please take a look at their Crowdfunder page if you would like to make a donation.

Haines Phillips are architects for the project at Lauderdale House, an arts and education centre in Waterlow Park, Highgate Village. Our proposals will preserve this historic timber framed building (dating back to 1582), and enhance its facilities to help ensure a long-term future for all its visitors.

Project architect Euan Durston recently took part in the fundraising video that forms part of this campaign.

We were also recently able to send on to Lauderdale House 100 helium balloons received from a client which they put to good use to spread word of the campaign.

Take a look at this and other stories at the Lauderdale House Facebook page.

Further details on the project are available on the dedicated project page of our website.
